EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This project contains plans for the church on its role in developing community or political leadership in Uganda. The church in Uganda has been participating in the development of the community; through social projects such as schools, health centers and bore wells. However, nothing has been done in the development of human resources for the political field that can reverse the current political challenges.

The main purpose of this research project has been to find out whether the church has been equipping leaders to lead the nation of Uganda or not. Specifically, the paper researched whether the church has done any leadership development or not. Research carried out among the Christian community on this issue in the months of March and April 2007, however, showed that the church has not equipped any political leader in Uganda. There are even leaders who were once church members are no longer practical or effective church members. This project came up with practical plans, such as creating awareness and training potential political leaders. Enrolment for political aspirants to be trained by the year 2008 ought to take place. There are also recommendations the church needs to follow in order to get good results, for example keeping to biblical principles of moral purity, justice, loving mercy and preaching of the sound doctrine and denouncing false world views, beliefs and values that erode the foundations of the nation.

If the church needs to see transformation in Uganda and in its neighborhood, it must act now using this program, establish advocacy as a part of its departments, mentor and disciple its members so that wherever they are, they would influence people for Christ
